

COMPOUND NOUNS

Nouns can be formed out of two or more combinations of words:

noun + noun: eyeline

noun + gerund: action painting

gerund + noun: vanishing point

verb + adverb: take-off

The noun can also be used as an attribute to define an object: perspective device (rather than construction device).

It can also be used to shorten such phrases as:

the frame of the picture → picture frame the key of the car → the car key.

The plural is formed adding -s on the second noun:

picture plane → picture planes church roof → church roofs.

However, there are some exceptions:

sister-in-law → sisters-in-law passer-by → passers-by.

If the noun is uncountable then no plural occurs: Renaissance music.

FURTHER NOTES ON COMPOUND NOUNS

- ✓ Compound nouns are nouns formed by joining two or more already-existing words
- ✓ A compound noun is composed of one (or more) modifier(s) + a head

EXAMPLES:

action movie (open compound)

singer-songwriter (hyphenated compound)

artwork (solid compound)

- ✓ Often a compound noun is also a lexical collocation. It happens when neither replacement nor inversion are allowed.
- ✓ Other examples of compound words:
on line, on-line, online (spelling evolution into three stages)
a layout

- a setup
- widespread
- moreover, nonetheless, furthermore (linking words)
- ✓ remember that the first noun entering a compound (i.e., the modifier) is usually in the singular form, unless the first noun occurs generally in the plural form:
a shoe manufacturer, a car factory needs analysis, media studies
- ✓ when the first noun of a compound is a numerical expression, it is singular:
a five-star hotel a forty-page long novel
a ten-floor building a three-month English course

Exercise 10

Change the following phrases into compound nouns.

1) A commission for a painting.

2) The Madonna in Munich.

3) Imaging with computers.

4) Texts used for art history.

5) Strokes made by a brush.

6) The collection of the Medici.

7) Issues regarding art theft.

8) A course for the appreciation of oil painting.

NOTES

Plane (picture plane) and plain (plain ground) are homophones. They have the same sound but different spellings and meaning. The English language is full of such cases.

Exercise 7

Give alternate spellings to the following words.

new

scene

so

steal

sight

whose

sure

moor

WORD STUDY

The suffix -ful (as in skilful) added to a noun means 'full of'. The suffix -less (as in doubtless) has the opposite meaning. Sometimes the suffix does not have the equivalent opposite (like beautiful - we cannot say beautyless!)

Exercise 9

Add an appropriate suffix to the noun.

- 1) I think Hogarth's engravings are (WONDER).
- 2) His action was very (THOUGHT) and he regretted it afterwards.
- 3) You must be (CARE) when you handle the painting.
- 4) The auctioneers were (HOPE) - they really thought they could sell the statue.
- 5) This text book is completely (USE) - it's too old and out of date.
