

Word Classes in E4AWP

Past Tenses' Forms and Usages

**** Past Simple vs Present Perfect ****

PAST SIMPLE

FORMS

affirmative form

I became
You became
He/She/It became
We became
You became
They became

negative form<sup>1</sup>

I did not become
You did not become
He/She/It did not become
We did not become
You did not become
They did not become

interrogative form

Did I become?
Did you become?
Did he/she/it become?
Did we become?
Did you become?
Did they become?

USAGES

✧ talking about states and actions which finished in the past:

- Alexander Fleming discovered penicillin.
- 'Did you read the paper?' 'Yes, and I sent it back to the Journal'.
- When she was young, she wanted to be a biologist.

✧ saying when something took place in the past, i.e., referring to a definite moment or period in the past:

- They left at half past nine.
- I met the Director of ECDC [European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control] yesterday.
- The first probable infections of BSE [Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy] in cows occurred during the 1970s in the UK.

<sup>1</sup> The contracted form of the auxiliary (didn't) is mainly used in spoken or informal English.

✧ describing events in a past narrative:

- Last year the Ministry of Health introduced two new vaccines and recommended to include them in all immunisation programmes.

✧ when a time clause, (also called “adverbial of time”), ending with ago (= before now) is used:

- I spoke to them an hour ago.
- Ebola virus disease broke out in Central Africa forty-six years ago.

EXAMPLES OF TIME ADVERBS USED WITH THE PAST SIMPLE:

at:	at ten o'clock / at the end of the month / at the weekend, ...
in:	in the morning / in July / in 2001 / in the 1980s / in the summer ...
on:	on Tuesday / on Tuesday afternoon / on March 10 th ...
no preposition:	yesterday / a few days ago / last week / when I was young

* * * * *

PRESENT PERFECT

FORMS

affirmative form<sup>2</sup>

I have bred
You have bred
He/She/It has bred
We have bred
You have bred
They have bred

negative form<sup>3</sup>

I have not bred
You have not bred
He/She/It has not bred
We have not bred
You have not bred
They have not bred

interrogative form

Have I bred?
Have you bred?
Has he/she/it bred?
Have we bred?
Have you bred?
Have they bred?

<sup>2</sup> Auxiliary's contracted forms – namely 've and 's – are mainly used in spoken or informal English.

<sup>3</sup> Auxiliary's contracted forms – namely haven't and hasn't – are mainly used in spoken or informal English.

USAGES

✧ talking about the present effects of past or recent events: results/consequences/ fallouts

- The EMA President has resigned.
- They have redesigned their website.
- Have you heard the news? Protein pharmaceuticals have become the fastest growing class of therapeutics owing to their beneficial impacts on the treatment of severe and life-threatening conditions and diseases.

✧ talking about experiences in someone's life up to the present:

- She has travelled a lot and has lived in several countries.

✧ announcing news:

- Our fax number has changed.
- The WHO has announced Kenya will receive the Covid-19 vaccine in small portions from 2021.

✧ with time references that combine past and present: e.g., “this year” usually stands for “from the beginning of the year until now”:

- This year the programme has vaccinated about 13,000 children.

✧ when adverbs such as already, ever, never, just, still, yet, not ... yet, so far, up to now, over the last few days, recently, lately, and so on, are used.

WARNING:

already goes between the auxiliary and the full verb:

- I have already studied present tenses in English.

ever is used in questions and is often followed by an answer in the past simple:

- ‘Have you ever worked abroad?’ ‘Yes, I have. I worked for a research lab in London. That was about ten years ago’.

never goes between the auxiliary and the full verb:

- I have never been to the United States<sup>4</sup>.

yet is usually at the end of the sentence:

<sup>4</sup> Pay attention to the differences between been and gone:

- They have been to Italy twice this year. (they have come back)
- They have gone to Italy. (they are still there)

- 'Is the report ready?' 'No, I haven't finished it yet'.
- Have George and Vanessa arrived yet?

still goes in front the verbal chain (auxiliary + full verb):

- We still haven't finished the installation. It's taking a long time.

so far is usually at the end or at the beginning of the sentence:

- We've had a good year so far.
- India has surpassed 15.6 million total reported infections so far, second-most after the United States.
- So far, only five mAbs [monoclonal antibodies] have been approved for the management of infectious states.

WARNING!!!! Sometimes such adverbs may be "hidden" in English, but when you translate into Italian it may be necessary to add an adverb or a time reference in order to better combine past and present:

- Polio is an example of a disease that has been eradicated in the USA as a result of vaccines. Other diseases that have been nearly eradicated in the USA include diphtheria, bacterial influenza, measles, mumps, rubella and tetanus, according to Vox. Worldwide, two diseases – smallpox and rinderpest, a disease that affects cattle – have been wiped out.

✧ when a time clause introduced by the prepositions for and since is used:

- She has been a researcher for ten years.
- From the Abyssinian to the Turkish van, cat lineages have been bred for decades to produce felines with minor physical distinctions.
- He has had the same job since 2006.
- Since the SARS-CoV-2 virus was first recognized in December of 2019, it has spread across the world.